THE

SPECIMEN BOOK

OF TYPES

CAST AT THE

AUSTIN FOUNDRY,

BY

WOOD & SHARWOODS,

120, ALDERSGATE STREET,

London.

TO PRINTERS.

GENTLEMEN,

WE have now published the first complete Specimen Book of Types cast at the AUSTIN LETTER-FOUNDRY.

We beg leave to invite your especial attention to the GENERAL UNIFORMITY AND HARMONY OF THE TYPE in composition, as well as to the BEAUTY OF EACH LETTER in its single form. And we venture to hope that your inspection of this Book, and a comparison with Specimens of a similar nature issued by other Letter-Founders, will tend to establish and increase the high reputation of our Letter, and to extend the decided preference which it has already acquired.

The late Mr. Austin was also eminently successful in providing for the DURABILITY OF THE METAL employed in the manufacture of his Types. His superiority in this particular was owing to one peculiar article being used in the mixture, which is unknown to our brethren of the art. And we now pledge ourselves, after having expended a very large sum in the purchase of this Secret, together with the Punches, Matrices, Moulds, &c., that no attention shall be wanting on our part to maintain the unrivalled excellence of the Letter in this important point.

We have in our possession a collection of works printed by our friends, which we should be at all times happy to produce as specimens, in proof of the superior manufacture of our type.

We are, GENTLEMEN,

Your obedient Servants,

WOOD & SHARWOODS.

⁂ We take this opportunity of thanking those friends who commenced the favour of their support when our business was conducted on a much smaller scale than at present; and we trust that, with our increased means of working well, we shall receive that continuance of their orders which it will be our constant endeavour to merit.

Quousque tandem abutere, Catilina, patientia nostra? quamdiu nos etiam furor iste tuus eludet? quem ad finem sese effrenata jactabit audacia? nihilne te nocturnum præsidium palatii, nihil urbis vigiliæ, nihil timor populi, nihil consensus bonorum omnium, nihil hic munitissimus habendi senatus locus, nihil horum ora vultusque moverunt? patere tua consilia non sentis? constrictam jam omnium horum conscientia teneri conjurationem tuam non vides? quid proxima, quid superiore, nocte egeris, ubi fueris, quos convocaveris, quid consilii, ceperis, quem nostrum ignorare arbitraris? O tempora, O mores! Senatus hoc intelligit, consul vidit: hic tamen vivit. Vivit! immo vero etiam in senatum venit: fit publici consilii particeps: notat et designat oculis ad cædem unumquemque nostrum. Nos autem viri fortes satisfacere reipublicæ videmur, si istius furorem ac tela vitemus. Ad mortem te, Catilina, duci jussu consulis jampridem oportebat: in te conferri pestem istam quam tu in nos omnes jamdiu machinaris. An vero vir amplissimus, P. Scipio, pontifex maximus, Tiberium Gracchum mediocriter labefactantem statum reipublicæ privatus interfecit: Catilinam vero orbem terræ cæde atque incendiis vastare cupientem nos consules perferemus? nam illa nimis antiqua prætereo, quod Q. Servilius Ahala Sp. Melium, novis rebus studentem, manu sua occidit.

Gentlemen,

We have published the first complete Specimen Book of Types cast at the Austin Letter Foundry.

We beg leave to invite your especial attention to the general uniformity and harmony of the Type in composition, as well as to the beauty of each Letter in its single form. And we venture to hope, that your inspection of this Book, and a comparison with Specimens of a similar nature issued by other Letter-Founders, will tend to establish and increase the high reputation of our Letter, and to extend the decided preference which it has already acquired.

We have in our posession a collection of works printed by our friends, which we should be at all times happy to produce as specimens, in proof of the superior manufacture of our Type.

DON JUAN.

A vein had burst, and her sweet lips' pure dyes
  Were dabbled with the deep blood which ran o'er,
And her head droop'd as when the lily lies
  O'ercharged with rain: her summon'd handmaids bore
Their lady to her couch with gushing eyes.
  Of herbs and cordials they produced their store,
But she defied all means they could employ,
Like one life could not hold, nor death destroy

Days lay she in that state unchanged, though chill,
  With nothing livid, still her lips were red;
She had no pulse, but death seem'd absent still,
  No hideous sign proclaim'd her surely dead;
Corruption came not in each mind to kill
  All hope; to look upon her sweet face bred
New thoughts of life, for it seem'd full of soul,
She had so much, earth could not claim the whole

The ruling passion, such as marble shows
  When exquisately chisell'd, still lay there,
But fixed as marble's unchanged aspect throwe
  O'er the fair Venus, but for ever fair;
O'er the Laocoon's all eternal throes,
  And ever dying Gladiator's air,
Their energy like life forms all their fame,
Yet looks not life, for they are still the same.

She woke at length, but as not as sleepers wake,
  Rather the dead, for life seem'd something new,
A strange sensation which she must partake
  Perforce, since whatsoever met her view
Struck not on memory, though a heavy ache
  Lay at her heart, whose earliest beat still true
Brought back the sense of pain without the cause,
For, for a while, the furies made a pause

She look'd on many a face with vacant eye,
  On many a token without knowing what;
She saw them watch her without asking why,
  And recked not who around her pillow sat;
Not speechless though she spoke not; not a sigh
  Relieved her thoughts; dull silence and quick chat
Were tried in vain by those who served; she gave
No sign save breath, of having left the grave.

BYRON.

LONG PRIMER HAIR-LINE

THE SHIPWRECK.

'Twas twilight, for the sunless day went down
  Over the waste of waters; like a veil,
Which, if withdrawn, would but disclose the frown
  Of one who hates us, so the night was shown,
And glimmer'd dimly on their faces pale,
  And hopeless eyes, which o'er the deep alone
Gazed dim and desolate: twelve days had Fear
Been their familiar, and now Death was here.

Some tried to hope in making at a raft,
  With little hope in such a rolling sea,
A sort of thing at which one would have laugh'd,
  If any laughter at such times could be,
Unless with people who too much have quaff'd,
  And have a kind of wild and horrid glee,
Half epileptical, and half hysterical:—
Their preservation would have been a miracle.

At half-past eight o'clock, booms, hencoops, spars,
  And all things, for a chance, had been cast loose,
That still could keep afloat the struggling tars,
  For yet they strove, although of no great use:
There was no light in heaven but a few stars.
  The boats put off o'ercrowded with their crews;
She gave a heel, and then a lurch to port,
And, going down head foremost—sunk in short.

Then rose from sea to sky the wild farewell,
  Then shriek'd the timid, and stood still the brave,
Then some leap'd overboard with dreadful yell,
  As eager to anticipate their grave;
And the sea yawn'd around her like a hell,
  And down she suck'd with her the whirling wave,
Like one who grapples with his enemy,
And strives to strangle him before he die.

And be it known to all Persons who are in the habit of attending public Meetings, that the too frequent use of this right has an evil tendency, by making the people too careless and indifferent about its exercise on great public occasions. It is known to most persons who are in the habit of attending Public Meetings that where, in one instance, great numbers appeared, and active and animated discussion took place, it is found difficult for some time after to procure another meeting at which equal zeal would be manifested. The mode in which these meetings are conducted points to any thing rather than to the beginning of a deliberative
